THE STANDARDS FOR CERTIFICATION AND RECERTIFICATION IN ADMIRALTY AND MARITIME LAW

1.0 Definition

Admiralty and Maritime law is the practice of law dealing with substantive and procedural aspects of navigation and shipping. It includes the statutes and regulations that govern the operation of vessels, piers, marinas, and the impact of pollution upon navigable waters and, under certain circumstances, may include these activities on the high seas. It also includes injury and other claims by maritime workers and passengers, debts and torts of vessels, marine insurance, vessel charters, marine casualties, salvage and wreck removal, marine pollution, carriage of goods and cargo damage or loss, piracy, pilotage and towage.

2.0 Task Requirements For Certification

An applicant must demonstrate that, within five years immediately preceding the initial application, he or she has been substantially involved in the practice of admiralty and maritime law. With respect to each task, the applicant must have performed the task personally, or had direct and primary responsibility for its performance under his or her close and ongoing supervision. For purposes of this showing, points may be accumulated from any of the tasks, subject to the maximum specified per task. However, each task may only be counted once. The term “dispositive hearing” as used hereinafter means determinative of one or more of the issues identified in one or more task requirements, with a minimum of 100 points in 2.1.

An applicant must submit a total of 300 points that must be accumulated during the five years immediately preceding the initial application and:
